Legislative.

The proceedings of the Legislature for several days past, have been delayed on account of the factious and unscrupulous efforts of the Filibuster Democrats to raise or to ruin. Unless they can organize the State—unless they can rule in their own way, they are willing and disposed to defeat an organization and to stop the business of legislation, no matter what the cost—no matter what provisions of the Constitution are trampled upon—no matter who suffers. They seem to think that they have a prescriptive right to the control of the State, and that any course of the people which deprives them of this right is a usurpation which they are justified in resisting at all hazards, and at whatever cost to the treasury of the State, and at whatever sacrifice of principle or consistency. Last year they were inclined to defeat an organization of the Senate by a refusal to elect a President. This year they have resorted to a trick to defeat an organization, unless it can be in a crooked, partial manner that shall enable them to make a grab upon power.

The Filibuster members of the House tried to play their game of small tricks in the organization of this body, by securing, as they thought they had by a party movement, in postponing the hour of meeting, the Committee on Credentials, so that the labor of an hour might be spread over the space of weeks or months. But the convention of the members of the House, cared this matter very suddenly, to the consideration of small tricks, by enlarging the committee and giving it a little vital and progressive force, by which means the House was organized in good time.

In the Convention of Senators, there has been a quorum present to organize a Senate, the Filibuster majority of the Committee on Senate Filibuster Votes neglected and refused to report, in the usual form, and according to the provisions of the Constitution, all the vacancies, but filed up a few, according to their liking, and reported them, in the hope that if the House should prove stupid enough to adopt the report they should get the organization of the State government, and thus successfully oppose the action of the people at the polls and do violence to the popular sentiment of the people.

This trick of the Filibuster Wildcat Democrats has delayed the legislation since the first day of the session. Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, at an expense of five hundred dollars a day, have the Legislature been kept back by this trick to prevent an organization required by the Constitution.

The subject has been ably debated both in the House and the Senate, and at the time of this writing we are anticipating that the House will speedily unite with such members of the Senate as have been elected, in ascertaining the vacancies and the constitutional candidates, and in rightly and constitutionally filing the vacancies, and thus admit of the Senate being organized for business. The growling and babbings, the tricks and contrivances of these Filibuster politicians would only be regarded as showing the necessity for wisdom, prudence, and determination. It is clear that if the Wildcat politicians had the power in their hands they would not scruple to block the wheels of the State rather than allow an organization adverse to their political and selfish wishes.

A correspondent of the New York Times states that the position of the Republic of Peru is a very critical one. Raised in a few years from a state of national bankruptcy to one of wealth, without any exertion upon her part, but owing entirely to her accidental ownership of the guano deposits, she has been playing the part of the "bigger on horseback." Men without education, talent, or merit of any description, have been raised from a state of absolute want to almost unbounded wealth. The government raises through its money, corruption, and the people enjoy only in name republican principles—in reality, absolute tyranny. There is a storm brewing, an earthquake, a cloudburst, which will ere long burst forth. Indeed, it may be said already to have commenced. Don Domingo Eliza, a distinguished Peruvian, one of the largest landowners in the country, and a candidate for the next Presidency, has actually taken up arms against the President; and though unsuccessful up to the present, he has numerous friends, and he has made matters public that have awakened the attention of many of his countrymen.

Some time ago a suspicion got abroad that the guano deposits were not the magnificent mine of wealth it was hoped and reported they were; and the government caused a survey to be made by their own officers, who, of course, will report favorably; but it is stated on good authority, that the supply is only equal to 14 years' consumption. And then what becomes of Peru, even supposing that ere that time the demand does not cease or the islands pass into other hands? What will pay the British bondholders their large capital lent to Peru? And yet Peru intends to negotiate another loan of some four or five millions of dollars, and doubtless English capitalists will give it to her and end their career when too late.

The Panama Herald, from a private correspondence, learns that the suffering of the people forming the colony of the Amazon, have been very great, and that many have deserted to Brazil, although the Peruvians do everything in their power to prevent it. Provisions are very scarce, and consist only of plantains, gorgonia, and meat, which is difficult to be got. Hatchets and other implements to clear the wood and commence cultivation are very scarce. The writer expresses a fear that the whole thing will prove a failure, and the colonists find the best of their way to Brazil; and this is more likely, as Peru, under present political circumstances, is unable to attend to the wants of the colony.

The Steamboat Law seems to have had a good effect in preventing accidents from collisions of all kinds. The whole number of collisions of all kinds, in Steamboats, during the year, was only 31. There were only 319 killed and 168 wounded; an amount much smaller than in preceding years.

We had the pleasure yesterday of securing an annual advance subscription from one of our old patrons, Gimel Sturdivant, Jr., Esq., of Dexter, whose name has adorned our Ledger of subscribers to the Bangor Courier for many years. It is always pleasant to us to take these old friends by the hand, because we feel that they are reliable, progressive and conservative men of the old school and pillars of the State. It would be a great joy to us to gather together these old friends of the Press—whose cheering smile was given to the Courier even before we were connected with it, and who for the long time we have had charge of it, have gone with us, week by week, in our joys and our sorrows, and in all our varied labors. Right true men do we find them, and well deserving our best efforts to furnish them the news—the movements and doings and thoughts of the world in advance of others.

We have received the first number of John Mitchell, the Irish Patriot's new paper published in New York, entitled The Citizen. It is a handsome paper of sixteen pages, published every Saturday, at three dollars a year, and the orders for the first number were for forty-five thousand copies. The Citizen is not to be a religious paper, either Catholic or Protestant, but to deal in secular matters. Its leading article discusses the probable effects of the war between Turkey and Russia, and scold the English government severely. The Citizen came to our personal address, where we should prefer seeing it marked to the Whig and Courier.

CLINTON: A Book for Boys. By Wm. Simonds, author of "The Boy's Own Guide," "Friendly Words," etc. with illustrations. Boston: Gould & Lincoln. 1884.

We have here a volume of nearly three hundred pages in the excellent style of the enterprising publishing house of Messrs. Gould & Lincoln. It contains a story of domestic life written in a quiet easy way, without any attempt at a fine or forcible writing, designed mainly to illustrate by common example the importance of early habits of obedience and industry; the danger of mingling, with vicious companions; and the watchfulness necessary to detect temptations, and the energy required to overcome them. Quiet home joys are treated of in the great securities to virtue.

This work may be purchased at the Book store of E. F. Duran, near the Post office.

THE WIND-SPIRIT AND THE RAIN-GODDESS. Translated from the German of M. Schlimper. By Turner Mantel. With woodcuts by G. Seguin. Boston: Crosby, Nichols & Co.

This is a new, charming volume, beautifully illustrated, and will prove deeply interesting to youthful readers. The volume is handsomely printed, is bound in a good and substantial manner, and will make a capital gift book for the young.

This work may be obtained at E. F. Duran's near the Post office.

It will be seen by referring to a notice in our columns that the Maine Educational Association will hold its first annual session at Bangor, on Wednesday the 18th inst. The friends of education generally in the State are requested to be present, and to help forward the great work which this association was formed to promote—the education in the best manner of all the children in the State and of the State.

In the discussion of the fragmentary report of the Senate committee, our city representative, George W. Ingersoll, Esq., made an effective speech which is commended on all hands. Mr. Ingersoll possesses the ability to take a high stand in the Legislature, and to exert a salutary influence there by the soundness of his logic, the force of his arguments, and the clear and gentlemanly fairness with which they are always accompanied.

Dr. Sewall of this city has invented a useful and practical machine for the purpose of aiding in the operation of reducing fractures, setting bones, &c. The Doctor has great mechanical and executive skill, and this invention will be a valuable contribution to the profession, which he has adopted and is destined to adorn.

A long procession of horses and carriages passed through this city yesterday to engage in the work of grading the Oldtown and Lincoln railroad, which has been contracted for, and which is to be put through in good shape, and when completed will probably be one of the "cheapest," as well as one of the best roads in the State.

The annual election of officers of the Mechanics' Association, will take place at their Hall on to-morrow evening. We learn that the old, active and earnest spirit of old times is to be invoked, and the association unite in greater activities. Let every member be present.

An industrious young mechanic of Columbus, Ohio, found an elaborately wrought purse, containing fifteen dollars in bright gold, in his pocketing on Christmas morning. The purse had been wrought by his wife, and the money saved from that allowed her for family expenses. Whoever sees that man twenty years hence will see a millionaire.

Samuel H. Jacobs, charged with shooting Patrick Donnelly in Fairfield, was tried at Norridgewock last week and sentenced to the State Prison for seven years.

In the House of Representatives at Washington on Friday last, quite a spirited discussion took place on a reference of the committee on the War Department, explaining the estimates of appropriations for rivers and harbors. During the controversy it was rendered apparent that most of the Southern and Western members will strongly favor what may be classed as improvement schemes in their sections of country, without regard to the known objections of the President to the generality of the same. The subject was finally referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Female Orphan Asylum.
To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:
Will you allow me space in your paper to say a few words in behalf of the Bangor Female Orphan Asylum establishment in our city? An institution benevolent in its object, and hitherto successful in its operation, although struggling against poverty, prejudice and neglect, or what is the same thing, want of public patronage.

The little band of willing hearts and working hands who are responsible for the support of this helpless community, have formerly, in various ways, appealed to their fellow citizens; and have met with a kind and generous response from many, and most gratefully do they acknowledge it. But, the raising of money for the support of permanent institutions by fair and sea-parties, or even by solicited donations, is tedious, unhealthy, and uncertain. To draw its support from a permanent fund would be most desirable. But that we have not, and to my mind, the next best available recourse is from annual subscription. This bears lightly upon all, so lightly as not to be felt, by even the poorest. One dollar a year is all that is solicited, and if only one half of the fathers or mothers of our citizens would contribute that small pittance for the moral, intellectual and physical necessities of the helpless, homeless child of war, this institution might be relieved of its present embarrassments, and its usefulness be much more extensively felt, even than it is now.

No one with a human heart, can fail of appreciating its value, who will visit that simple, quiet retreat on Fourth street, and see the health, happy faces of the little ones, collected from the depths of poverty, pollution, and cruelty; some, whose early history would chill the blood in any heart warmed by a mother's love. Mothers! I appeal to you, when you press to your bosoms those treasures of your hearts' best affections, think what would you ask from your fellow beings, were your own little ones left to the cold charity of a selfish world? Think of your infant daughters, motherless, homeless! Will your answer be—Send them to the poor house? or let them companion with the brutal, the profane, the fugitive of both sexes? Bring the que on home, suffer it to occupy your thoughts, and I will not believe that we have a mother in our midst who will not respond joyfully to our appeal. No matter who the little sufferer may be, by what name she is called, or to what nation, or creed, she may claim affinity, the call is in the name of suffering humanity, and may the spirit of Him who placed the love of our neighbor second only to the love of our God, move the hearts of those who have hitherto turned coldly from an interest in this little flock, (small, only from the want of means to support a larger number) to send the needed dollar to cheer the hearts and help the labors of those faithful guardians, whose energies have been taxed, resources exhausted, and all, save trust in the righteousness of their object, has often nearly failed them.

It is believed, that all who stand true to the moral culture of the youthful mind, will appreciate this institution over our other very "useful" provisions for the poor. With those who do not, argument would be useless.

Mrs. Hamlin, on Court street, is Treasurer for this institution, and in behalf of the little ones, who are suffering the sharp pangs of poverty, the heart-breaking, soul-destroying effects of neglect and cruelty. I ask of you, fathers and mothers, to send to the Treasurer, one dollar, and your names as subscribers, and receive for yourselves the thanks of the Managers, the prayers and blessings of the widows and the orphans, and the approbation of your God.

American Sunday-School Union.
The American Sunday-School Union has from its commencement been engaged in the work of grading the Oldtown and Lincoln railroad, which has been contracted for, and which is to be put through in good shape, and when completed will probably be one of the "cheapest," as well as one of the best roads in the State.

The following is from the principal account of the weekly and bi-weekly publication of the MOST WONDERFUL CURE IN THE HISTORY OF MEDICAL SCIENCE. I submit the following as an instance of the utility of your great medicine. My child, three years old, was seized with a severe attack of whooping cough, and was unable to breathe, and was in a state of great distress. I had tried every remedy, but without success. I then procured your medicine, and gave it to him as directed. In less than three days he was cured, and was as healthy as before. I am sure that your medicine is the best in the world for this complaint. I have tried it on several other children, and with the same success. I am sure that your medicine is the best in the world for this complaint. I have tried it on several other children, and with the same success.

DO NOT FORGET.
If you have a cough or cold, hoarseness, asthma, or any other of the kind, that prevents you from doing your duty, or that causes you much distress, please remedy it as early as possible. There is no more pleasant remedy than Scott's Emulsion. It is a simple, natural, and powerful remedy, and is the best in the world for all these complaints. It is the only remedy that will cure you without doing you any harm. It is the only remedy that will give you strength and health. It is the only remedy that will make you feel like a new man. It is the only remedy that will make you feel like a new man.

LOOK OUT FOR COUNTERFEITS.
The public are cautioned against purchasing and using the counterfeit of the most valuable of all the medicines in the world, the Scott's Emulsion. The counterfeit is a cheap, worthless, and dangerous imitation of the original. It will do you no good, and may even do you harm. It will not give you strength and health, and it will not make you feel like a new man. It will not make you feel like a new man.
